CONCENTRATION STATEMENT

Our time here on earth as individuals is minute. Our impact: insignificant. We are here, then we are gone. We, as humans, focus and worry too much about the future and not enough about the present. The present is fleeting. It is vital that we focus on and find peace in the present time. This way the present can live on in memory and not disappear into the abyss of time. We can hold on to those memories, although they are faded and past we can look back and reminisce on those times.
